Will I see a doctor every time MD2U comes to my house?

In most cases, MD2U patients will be seen by nurse practitioners. Nurse practitioners are registered nurses who have completed extensive additional training that enables them to perform most of the duties of a physician at a much lower cost to you and your insurance provider.

Nurse practitioners are also able to visit each patient more frequently. This frequency helps keep our patients out of the hospital by identifying health issues early when they can be treated most effectively.

Who is my MD2U provider?

MD2U providers are well trained and highly qualified nurse practitioners. You will be assigned a provider in your area. Most follow up visits and acute visits will be made by your assigned provider, however, there may be times when you will be seen by another provider.

What is a nurse practitioner?

Nurse practitioners are registered nurses who have completed extensive additional education, training, and have a dramatically expanded scope of practice over the traditional RN role. To become licensed/certified to practice, nurse practitioners hold national board certification in an area of specialty (such as family, women's health, pediatrics, adult, acute care, etc.), and are licensed or certified through the state nursing boards rather than medical boards. The core philosophy of the field is individualized care. Nurse practitioners focus on patients' conditions as well as the effects of illness on the lives of the patients and their families. NPs make prevention, wellness, and patient education priorities. Another focus is educating patients about their health and encouraging them to make healthy choices.

Nurse practitioners treat both physical and mental conditions through comprehensive history taking, physical exams, ordering and interpreting diagnostic tests. NPs can then diagnose the disease and then provide appropriate treatment for the patients, including prescribing medications. NPs can serve as a patient's primary health care provider, and see patients of all ages depending on their specialty (family, pediatrics, geriatrics, etc.).

Will a doctor be involved in my treatment?

Each nurse practitioner has a close relationship with an MD2U collaborating physician. This physician is a resource for complex medical issues and can visit a patient when necessary.

Can the MD2U provider be my primary care provider?

Absolutely! The MD2U provider can become your primary care provider. The only difference is that the MD2U provider comes to you. No more waiting in a crowded doctor's office. MD2U can also work closely with your existing primary care physician. In these situations, we send a letter to your existing physician to help clarify MD2U's role in your care.
